'It's historic'

Chicago Tribune

The line of couples waiting to wed in circuit court Saturday morning wasn't longer than usual, court clerks said. What was unusual was that—for the first time in Cook County or Illinois—it included several same-sex couples with a license to marry.

Some held bouquets, wore white dresses or gray suits, and were accompanied by family or friends, but any trappings of a familiar wedding scene had to come together quickly for these couples. A federal judge Friday allowed Cook County to issue marriage licenses months before a state marriage law is scheduled to take effect.

Greg Gale, 62, said he scrambled to put appropriate wedding attire together—he decided on a light-colored suit and red tie—Saturday morning after he and his now-husband, Chris Ferguson, 61, decided in the early morning hours to marry after driving to the Cook County clerk's office Friday to be among the first to get their license.

After the four-minute ceremony, the smiling couple of more than 20 years, from Bloomingdale, reflected on the day's significance.

"It's historic," Gale said. "Yesterday morning I had filled out an application to get married in Iowa because it was legal there, [but] we wanted to do it here, where we live. It's just a once-in-a-lifetime thing."

Paperwork in hand, Lisa Martin and Vicki Kenyon waited in line at the court office, casual in jeans and sweaters. After 13 years together, the couple were relieved to "upgrade the relationship status," Kenyon said, from a civil union to marriage.

"It's just kind of neat to be part of the first people doing it," said Kenyon, 46, adding that because she travels often for work, "having that legal protection is really important to us."

U.S. District Judge Sharon Johnson Coleman's ruling was announced late Friday morning, drawing 46 gay couples to the lower level of the Daley Center to get a marriage license. Thanks to a waiver from a judge, Cook County Clerk David Orr even married a couple Friday, giving them red roses to celebrate.

Flanked by their 9-year-old daughter and 5-year-old son, Theresa Volpe and Mercedes Santos held hands as Orr officiated at their marriage ceremony in his office in the Loop. The couple were part of a previous lawsuit over gay union rights and had testified in Springfield on behalf of gay marriage.

Why wait? Judge's ruling allows gay marriage to commence in Cook County

Theresa Volpe (left) and Mercedes Santos are married Friday immediately following a federal court order. E. JASON WAMBORGANS/TRIBUNE

The state's first gay marriage was Nov. 27, when Chicagoans Vernita Gray and Patricia Ewert wed after a federal court ordered the Cook County clerk to immediately issue them a license because Gray was battling terminal cancer. Gray and Ewert had filed a lawsuit in U.S. District Court arguing that they should be granted the right to marry immediately.

The women, both in their mid-60s, had been in a committed relationship for more than five years and in 2011 entered into a civil union. Gray has lived in Illinois all her life and has terminal breast cancer. It was her last wish to be formally married to her partner, the couple's attorneys said at the time.

But Saturday was the first day most couples could wed because Illinois licenses, which are valid for 60 days, require couples to wait a calendar day before marrying. Couples in an Illinois civil union can get a marriage license with its $60 fee waived.

The ruling applies only to Cook County, but couples like Gale and Ferguson who live in other counties can get their license in Cook County if they also are married in the county, Orr said.

THEN AND NOW

Gov. Quinn signed the state's same-sex marriage bill into law Nov. 20 during a ceremony at the University of Illinois at Chicago attended by more than 2,000 supporters. In her decision announced Friday, U.S. District Judge Sharon Johnson Coleman wrote that "there is no reason to delay further when no opposition has been presented to this Court and committed gay and lesbian couples have already suffered from the denial of their fundamental right to marry."

The 5 cliques of Twitter

Jessica Gallart

• jgallart@tribune.com
 • @jessicagallart

When you spend more than half of your day looking at or aggressively typing out tweets—because it's, you know, your job—you often find yourself asking things like, "Who ARE these people?"

Only 14 percent of the adult population uses Twitter, according to Pew Research Center, but on any given day, you'll undoubtedly cross paths with at least 78 different kinds of human beings, for better or for worse. Many of these people can be clumped together into stereotypical subsets if you really give it a try.

Segue to ...

New study! After analyzing thousands of conversations on Twitter, Pew identified six types of Twitter archetypes, or networks, and what they are discussing. The report is fairly scientific-y and identifies networks like "Divided" (two polarizing crowds mostly discussing politics, though not with each other) and "Clustered" (focused on timely topics and current events).

Thanks, science, but if you really want to understand Twitter from a casual user's perspective, you really need to know about only a few subsets of the Twitter wasteland. Here are some of the conversations I've noticed in my six-plus years falling down the rabbit hole.

Aggro Twitter

I hate Tuesdays, too! The media is what's really wrong with society and we need to burn it to the ground!! Let's start commiserating openly on Twitter about how much we hate our jobs! Everyone's done it, of course, but for some, this revolving, aggressive conversation is pretty much it. I personally prefer it to a passive-aggressive conversation, though, which actually leads us to ...

In-fighting Twitter

These people suck and should be dumped as friends immediately. This type of conversation comes from the tight friend groups whose members are all on Twitter mainly to communicate with each other and nobody else. So when beef erupts within it, the passive-aggressive tweets, retweets and "favorites" start to fly. Folks just outside of the circle begin to wonder what's going on but "just want to stay out of it." Back and forth, back and forth, until someone eventually blocks everyone and the whole thing drops off the face of the Earth. Just give up and start a Tumblr ... damn!

Weird Twitter

In which some bots and real people type out nonsensical things, press send and then retweet each other on a loop until they cannibalize each other.

Megaphone Twitter

Look at me! Click my link! Is anybody out there? ... Hey? A combination of stream-of-consciousness tweeting and promotional messaging. Megaphone Twitter is basically harmless. If not pointless. It's that conversation you have every time you see that one friend who is incapable of talking about anything other than himself or herself.

Porn Twitter

I recently sat behind a guy on the Blue Line aggressively looking at cleavage pics on Twitter. There are literally millions of other ways to get porn on your phone. But Twitter? It's undoubtedly a good promo tool for folks in the business, so, I get it. But the funny part about this is that the "conversation" is totally one-sided and consists exclusively of someone sending photos and someone else gawking at them. Whatever gets you through the day, I guess.

Apple has an iProblem

Reuters

SAN FRANCISCO Apple said on Saturday that it would issue a software update "very soon" to cut off the ability of spies and hackers to grab email, financial information and other sensitive data from Mac computers.

Confirming researchers' findings late Friday that a major security flaw in iPhones and iPads also appears in notebook and desktop machines running Mac OS X, Apple spokeswoman Trudy Muller told Reuters: "We are aware of this issue and already have a software fix that will be released very soon."

Apple released a fix Friday afternoon for the mobile devices running iOS, and most will update automatically. Once that fix came out, experts dissected it and saw the same fundamental issue in the operating system for Apple's mainstream computers.

That started a race, as intelligence agencies and criminals will try to write programs that take advantage of the flaw on Macs before Apple pushes out the fix for them.

The flaw is so odd in retrospect that researchers faulted Apple for inadequate testing and some speculated that it had been introduced deliberately, either by a rogue engineer or a spy. Former intelligence operatives said the best "back doors" often look like mistakes.

Muller declined to address the theories.

"It's as bad as you could imagine, that's all I can say," said Johns Hopkins University cryptography professor Matthew Green.

Adam Langley, who deals with similar programming issues as a Google engineer, wrote on his personal blog that the flaw might not have shown up without elaborate testing.

"I believe that it's just a mistake and I feel very bad for whomever might have slipped," he wrote.

The problem lies in the way the software recognizes the digital certificates used by banking sites, Google's Gmail service, Facebook and others to establish encrypted connections. A single line in the program and an omitted bracket meant that those certificates were not authenticated at all, so that hackers can impersonate the website being sought and capture all the electronic traffic before passing it along to the real site.

In addition to intercepting data, hackers could insert malicious Web links in real emails, winning full control of the target computer.

Could This Get Rid Of Knee Pain Once And For All... Without Drugs, Shots, or Surgery?

Now, in Downtown Chicago, IL, one doctor is helping local residents with knee pain live more active, pain-free lives.

Living with knee pain can feel like a crippling experience.

Let's face it, your knees aren't as young as you used to be, and playing with the kids or grandkids isn't any easier either. Maybe your knee pain keeps you from walking short distances or playing golf like you used to.

Nothing's worse than feeling great mentally, but physically feeling held back from life because your knee hurts and the pain just won't go away!

My name is Dr. Paul Ruzila, owner of Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness. Since we opened eight years ago, we've seen hundreds of people with knee problems leave the office pain free.

Do You Have Any of the Following Conditions?

- Arthritis
- Knee pain
- Cartilage damage
- 'Bone-on-bone'
- Tendonitis
- Bursitis
- Crunching and popping sounds

Here's What Our Patients Say... "I was in denial about my knees as I winced on stairs, and put off going for a run. I didn't want to hear that I needed surgical intervention. I admit I was skeptical about how my knees could be improved with such non-invasive procedures. But I am happy to report that I was wrong. I went for my first run in about 18 months. NO PAIN! Thanks for relieving my knee pain!" - Jeff K.

If you're suffering from these conditions, a new breakthrough in medical technology may completely eliminate your pain and help restore normal function to your knees.

Finally, You Have An Option Other Than Drugs or Surgery

New research in a treatment called low level laser therapy, or cold laser, is having a profound effect on patients suffering with knee pain. Unlike the cutting type of laser seen in movies and used in medical procedures, the cold laser penetrates the surface of the skin with no heating effect or damage.

Cold laser therapy has been tested for 40 years, had over 2000 papers published on it, and been shown to aid in damaged tissue regeneration, decrease inflammation, relieve pain and boost the immune system. This means that there is a good chance cold laser therapy could be your knee pain solution, allowing you to live a more active lifestyle.

Professional athletes like Lance Armstrong and team members of the New England Patriots rely upon cold laser therapy to treat their sports-related injuries. These guys use the cold laser for one reason only...

It Promotes Rapid Healing Of The Injured Tissues.

Before the FDA would clear the cold laser for human use, they wanted to see proof that it worked. This led to two landmark studies.

The first study showed that patients who had cold laser therapy had 53% better improvement than those who had a placebo. The second study showed patients who used the laser therapy had less pain and more range of motion days after treatment. If the cold laser can help these patients, it can help you too.

Could This Non-Invasive, Natural Treatment Be The Answer To Your Knee Pain?

For 10 days only, I'm running a very special offer where you can find out if you are a candidate for cold laser therapy.

What does this offer include? Everything I normally do in my "Knee Pain Evaluation." Just call before March 10th, 2014 and here's what you'll get...

- An in-depth consultation about your problem where I will listen... really listen...to the details of your case.
- A complete neuromuscular examination.
- A full set of specialized x-rays to determine if arthritis is contributing to your pain.
- A thorough analysis of your exam and x-ray findings so we can start mapping out your plan to being pain free.
- You'll see everything first hand and find out if this amazing treatment will be your pain solution, like it has been for so many other patients.

Until March 10th, 2014 you can get everything I've listed here for only $19. The normal price for this type of evaluation including x-rays is $250, so you're saving a considerable amount by taking me up on this offer.

A new treatment is helping patients with knee pain live a happier, more active lifestyle.

Remember what it was like before you had knee problems. When you were pain free and could enjoy everything life had to offer. It can be that way again. Don't neglect your problem any longer – don't wait until it's too late.

Here's what to do now:

Due to the expected demand for this special offer, I urge you to call our office at once. The phone number is 312-212-1150.

Call today and we can get started with your talk, exam and x-rays as soon as there's an opening in the schedule. Our office is called Chicago Chiropractic & Wellness and you can find us in downtown Chicago. Tell the receptionist you'd like to come in for the Knee Evaluation before March 10th, 2014.

Sincerely,

Dr. Paul Ruzila, D.C.

P.S. Now you might be wondering...

"Is this safe? Are there any side effects or dangers to this?"

The FDA cleared the first cold laser in 2002. This was after their study found 76% improvement in patients with carpal tunnel syndrome. Their only warning – don't shine it in your eyes.

Of course at our office, the laser is never anywhere near your eyes and we'll give you a comfortable pair of goggles for safety.

Don't wait and let your knee problems get worse, disabling you for life. Take me up on my offer and call today 312-212-1150.

READY FOR REHAB?

$492 million project to upgrade O'Hare branch launches in March

Chicago Tribune

The four-year overhaul of the CTA Blue Line O'Hare branch will be getting underway a few months early, the transit agency will announce Monday, with sections closing over to weekends between late March and August.

CTA officials are asking riders to get on board with plans for temporary shuttle bus service, which is scheduled to kick off over the weekend of March 21 through the morning of March 24, when the California Avenue station will be temporarily closed for track work between the Western and Logan Square stations. The Western and Logan Square stations will remain open, officials said.

The CTA is conducting test runs of the free shuttle bus service in traffic to determine the best routes and to gauge travel times, CTA spokesman Brian Steele said. Riders affected by station closings should plan on anywhere from an extra 5 to 20 minutes, depending on their trip, he said. Free transfers will be provided from the shuttles back into open rail stations, Steele said.

Travelers going to O'Hare should budget the most extra time to ensure they make their flights, officials advised.

Nicknamed "Your New Blue," the $492 million project will dramatically improve travel times, reliability and customer convenience and enable the O'Hare branch to meet future ridership needs, said Carole Morey, CTA chief planning officer.

The branch is dotted with numerous slow zones that drag out the roughly 25-mile trip between downtown and O'Hare to about 50 minutes. The improvements, when completed at the end of 2018, are projected to shave up to 10 minutes off travel times each way, transit officials said.

Riders should begin experiencing better service by later this year on the elevated portion from near Logan Square through Damen, said Bob Wittmann, CTA vice president of construction.

Construction-related rail service disruptions will not occur every weekend, but 2014 is poised to be a busy year, beginning with SOUND FAMILIAR? Last year over about five months, the Red Line's south branch, between Chinatown and 95th Street along the Dan Ryan Expressway, was shut down for a complete track replacement and station upgrade project that cost $425 million. "The O'Hare branch project is not an entire rebuild like Red Line South, but it will have the same type of benefits for customers," CTA spokesman Brian Steele said.

track work and followed by station rehab projects, officials said. The station work will begin at Western, Damen and California—the latter two dating to 1895. Improvements will be made at a total of 13 of the 16 stations on the branch.

"California and Damen are both historic, and we had to work very closely with the Illinois Historic Preservation Agency to make sure our design conforms with the historic nature of those properties," Wittmann said.

The project involves upgrading track, stations, signals and traction power and resolving water problems on the subway, elevated and Kennedy Expressway sections of the O'Hare branch.

The modernization is sorely needed on the project's 12.5-mile section between the Grand and O'Hare stations. Blue Line trains must reduce speed to as little as 15 mph, instead of the normal 55 mph maximum, on more than 21 percent of the O'Hare branch due to deteriorated track, according to the latest slow zone map, dated Feb. 17.

The CTA will invest about $180 million in new signals to help increase train speeds and provide the ability to run more trains, officials said.

Turnback tracks also will be constructed at Jefferson Park and UIC Halsted to allow the CTA to short-turn trains during peak travel hours so it can tailor service to meet the heaviest passenger demand, officials said.

This year's work will be concentrated into one weekend in March, three in April, two in May, two in June, one in July and one in August. Some work also will be conducted during overnight hours on weekdays.

The O'Hare branch serves about 88,000 riders on an average weekday, about 56,000 riders on Saturdays and 46,000 riders on Sundays, according to CTA ridership reports.

Over seven weekends, Blue Line service will be suspended between the Western and Logan Square stations, officials said. Service will be halted between the Damen and Western stations over three weekends. The shutdowns will occur between about 10 p.m. on Fridays until shortly before 4 a.m. on Mondays, according to the project schedule.

The CTA is working with aldermen to complete details on temporary street closings and parking restrictions near the rolling work sites, officials said.

The $492 million project marks the most comprehensive overhaul since the branch was extended to O'Hare International Airport from Jefferson Park in 1983-1984, officials said.

A train pulls into the Blue Line Damen station.

BREAKING DOWN THE BLUE LINE

Weekend work to upgrade the Blue Line tracks will require temporary stoppages of service on parts of the O'Hare branch. Service will end at 10 p.m. on Fridays and resume by 4 a.m. on Mondays; free bus shuttle service to each affected station will be provided. Dates are tentative, dependent on weather and subject to change.

Musician feels the love after his guitar is stolen

Chicago Tribune

Canadian musician Harry Manx said he felt alone and insecure Friday as he stepped onstage just hours after his signature Indian guitar had been stolen in Chicago.

But a Facebook message about the theft he posted that night went viral, producing 3.5 million views, multiple offers of help and, ultimately, a replacement shipped from India by a stranger.

Manx filed a police report saying that the guitar, called a Mohan veena, was stolen earlier that day from a baggage claim at O'Hare.

That night he posted a message on the social media website, telling fans what happened and pleading for the return of the guitar he had been playing for 20 years.

Forty minutes into the show, Manx checked Facebook and found 50,000 people had seen his note. By Sunday morning, he said, that figure had ballooned to 3.5 million views. Thousands of people have shared the post and at least three people have offered to send him a new instrument.

"Suddenly, the whole dynamic changed," he said of the Facebook feedback. "I haven't felt alone since."

On Friday morning, Manx arrived at O'Hare from Toronto to play a weekend of shows in Wisconsin. But when he reached the Terminal 2 baggage claim at 10:47 a.m., the black fiberglass case covered with stickers that carried the guitar was missing.

After speaking with police, Manx, 59, said he learned someone had picked up the guitar, along with another traveler's bag, and headed out the door.

Chicago police said video surveillance captured the incident, but Manx said he was told the suspect's face is not visible. No one was in custody as of Sunday evening, a Chicago police spokesman said.

A musician since the age of 15, Manx has made the Mohan veena a signature part of his music, which marries blues and classical

DID YOU KNOW?

Only a few musicians play the Mohan veena in India, where it was created by Grammy Award-winning musician Vishwa Mohan Bhatt. Manx traveled to India and studied under Bhatt for 12 years. The instrument, a hybrid of the guitar and sitar, has two layers of 20 strings running parallel and tuning heads down the neck. It is usually held on the lap and played with a metal bar.

Indian.

The outpouring has uplifted Manx, who will soon be touring Canada, England and Eastern Europe. He hopes to get the veena back but said the biggest prize has been seeing the generosity from friends and strangers, especially those in Chicago.

"I sort of think it's a fair trade," Manx said. "He can have the veena, I'll take the love I have here. That's probably worth more than the instrument. At the end of the day, it's just wood."

Cops warn of 'netbanging'

By Rachel Cromidas | REDEYE

Chicago police officers are looking into how Internet gang activity, or "netbanging," may be contributing to local crime, Rogers Park district commander Thomas Waldera said at a Thursday beat meeting.

"This is the new thing, citywide," he told a room of Rogers Park residents and police officers at an evening community policing meeting at the district police station. "They get on YouTube, they friend each other, and they go back and forth, like it's electronic graffiti, they just taunt each other."

Waldera said YouTube videos might have motivated the shooting that took the life of a 17-year-old boy and wounded three other teenagers near a Rogers Park McDonald's on Feb. 6. Waldera said officers still are investigating the shooting.

"We think they were after this one guy for producing and starring in these YouTube videos that taunt each gang," he said. "But he has done it to so many gangs, that we can't narrow it down to which one we think did it, so we're still out there looking for intel."

Ukraine sets course for EU integration

1 Ukraine's interim leadership pledged to put the country back on course for European integration now that Moscow-backed Viktor Yanukovich had been ousted from the presidency, while the United States warned Russia against sending in its forces.

As rival neighbors east and west of the former Soviet republic said a power vacuum in Kiev must not lead to the country breaking apart, acting president Oleksander Turchinov said late Sunday that Ukraine's new leaders wanted relations with Russia on a "new, equal and good-neighborly footing that recognizes and takes into account Ukraine's European choice."

A day after Yanukovich fled to the Russian-speaking east following dozens of deaths during street protests aimed at toppling him, parliament named new speaker Turchinov as interim head of state. An ally of the ousted leader's long-jailed rival Yulia Tymoshenko, he aims to swear in a government by Tuesday that can provide authority until a presidential election on May 25.

Tymoshenko, freed from prison guard Saturday after Yanukovich fled Kiev, said Sunday she did not want to be considered for the post of prime minister.

1 dead, dozens sickened by leak in N.Y.

3 The carbon monoxide leak that killed a Long Island restaurant manager and sickened more than two dozen other people was caused by a leaky pipe, officials said Sunday. All of those hospitalized in the Saturday incident were either restaurant workers or emergency responders, a spokesman for the town of Huntington, N.Y., told the Los Angeles Times.

Bush launches PTSD program for veterans

4 Former President George W. Bush on Sunday promoted a new initiative to help veterans transition back to civilian life and aid in the treatment of post-traumatic stress disorder. The Bush Institute is working with government, nonprofits, private companies and universities on the initiative, which also targets ways to encourage employers to recruit and retain veterans.

Drug lord apprehended

2 MEXICO CITY Mexico's most wanted drug lord, Joaquin Guzman, known as "El Chapo," was captured Saturday in a joint operation by Mexican and U.S. federal agents, a senior U.S. official said.

Guzman, long considered the top prize and most elusive figure in the ongoing drug war that has left tens of thousands of Mexicans dead, was taken into custody before dawn at a hotel in the seaside Sinaloa resort town of Mazatlan. He could face federal charges in Chicago, where he was charged in a wide-ranging indictment in 2009, or in Texas and also faces charges in California and Arizona.

Guzman led the Sinaloa cartel, the most powerful, richest and oldest of the drug-trafficking networks in Mexico. The group is responsible for the shipment of tons of cocaine and marijuana to the U.S.

Guzman was arrested in Guatemala in 1993 but escaped dramatically from prison in 2001—supposedly by hiding in a laundry cart—and has been on the lam ever since, despite numerous reported sightings.

The U.S. offered a $5-million bounty for his capture. In Washington, Department of Justice officials declined to comment before the Mexican government made an official announcement. But one federal law enforcement official said interest was high in working with the Mexican government to get Guzman extradited to the U.S. to face charges.

"He's already escaped from one Mexican jail," the official said. "Now we want him."

THE CHICAGO CONNECTION

In 2009, Joaquin Guzman was charged in a federal grand jury indictment in Chicago along with 10 other Sinaloan cartel leaders for moving heroin and cocaine into this country after his organization merged with another "affiliated cartel" and formed an alliance known as "the Federation."

Federal prosecutors in Chicago brought the charges against Guzman after the two cartels began a feud and two brothers who had been working with the cartels, Pedro and Margarito Flores, began cooperating with federal investigators.

Because of its central location in the U.S. transportation network, Chicago has been a key location for Guzman's cartel, according to the indictments against him, with the Flores' brothers' drug-distribution group in Chicago repackaging drugs for areas from Philadelphia to Vancouver.

Authorities in Chicago last year dubbed Guzman the city's first Public Enemy No. 1 since gangster Al Capone.

That's how much Babe Ruth's pocket watch from the 1923 World Series sold for at an auction in New York on Saturday. The pentagonal 14-karat gold watch was purchased by a telephone bidder, according to espn.com. Heritage Auctions, which administered the auction, said the buyer requested anonymity.

2014 WINTER GAMES • SOCHI, RUSSIA

Fireworks explode around Olympic Stadium during the closing ceremony in Sochi.

GETTY IMAGES

Say 'Sochi!'

That was fast—these images will tide you over until the next Olympics

Just like that, it's over. Eighteen days of Olympic competition and coverage have made us cheer (28 U.S. medals), laugh (see: Jimmy Kimmel and Kate Hansen's wolf prank) and cringe (whipping protesters? Really, Russia?). We know it's a long time until the Olympic flame is lit in Rio in 2016. Until then, these snapshots will stick with us. REDEYE

66%

Six of the U.S.' nine gold medals (or 66 percent) came from action sports. Shockingly, Shaun White did not figure in that haul. Americans historically have dominated these sports on account of having invented them. Maybe they can invent a few more in time for 2018.

Final Medal Count

Russia finished the Winter Games with the most medals of any country. And while the United States finished second, it fell nine short of its 2010 medal count. Here's a look at how the Top 3 countries fared:

Silver: 11

SIX

Between Canadians Jonathan Toews, Duncan Keith, Patrick Sharp and Brent Seabrook, the Blackhawks have six hockey gold medals in the past two Olympics.

"It's an amazing feeling to be part of a team like that, whether your role was big or small," Toews said of Team Canada. "We were just an amazing team to watch, the way we worked together and the way we were all over [Sweden in the gold-medal game Sunday]. It was a fun team to be a part of."

FOUR

Blackhawks forward Patrick Kane arrived in Sochi with high expectations after he helped Team USA to a silver medal in 2010. He left these Games with just four assists—and no goals—and a fourth-place finish.

"No excuses—I wasn't good enough to help the team win a medal," Kane said. "I feel fine—physically fine, mentally fine. Yeah, it's been a tough couple of weeks, but at the same time, no excuses."

David Backes
GETTY IMAGES

SIX

The literal underdogs of the Sochi Olympics were the strays who populate the host city. At least six have been rescued by U.S. athletes. And more help is on the way. Hockey player David Backes has started an organization to help find shelters for the animals.

"I want for us to be able to give them a chance for a forever home and kind of live in that lap of luxury that a lot of dogs in North America have," Backes said. "If we can do that for a few of them, and give them that little reprieve, it's a great opportunity for those dogs and to maybe show people how we treat our animals, and maybe that could be contagious as well."

TRIBUNE NEWS SERVICES CONTRIBUTED TO THIS REPORT.

THREE

Not including the Blackhawks, three Chicago-area athletes seized medals in Sochi. One was 25-year-old bobsledding brakeman Aja Evans, who took bronze with driver Jamie Greubel.

"If [driver] Elana [Meyers] is still around in 2018, you can definitely look for me again," Evans said. Meyers took silver in Sochi with brakeman Lauryn Williams.

Also taking home hardware were women's hockey players and silver medalists Megan Bozek and Kendall Coyne.

ZERO

There were several notable shut-outs when it comes to American athletes. But none was more shocking than the zero medals won by the U.S. long-track speedskaters. That includes Chicagoan Shani Davis, the top-ranked skater in the world, who finished no higher than eighth in his races.

"I don't think there's any 'Da Vinci Code' in it," Davis said of the team's struggles. "The results speak for themselves and something most likely will happen after the Olympics with whatever, but we'll have to wait to see what happens."

The lone U.S. speedskating medal was a silver in the men's short-track 5,000-meter relay.

Move over, Lindsey Vonn. Mikaela Shiffrin is the new face of women's skiing in America. The 18-year-old became the youngest to win the slalom, and she might win over even more people with her ambition.

"Right now, I'm dreaming of the next Olympics [and] winning five gold medals, which sounds really crazy," Shiffrin said. "I'm sorry I just admitted that to you all."

COLD RUSH

One last dose of what gave us chills at the Sochi Olympics—good and bad

Blackhawks win!

Well, three of them anyway. Jonathan Toews scored in Canada's 3-0 win over Sweden on Sunday in the gold-medal game. Which means he scores his second gold medal, as does Duncan Keith, while Patrick Sharp collects his first. Niklas Hjalmarsson, Johnny Oduya and Marcus Kruger took silver with the Swedes.

Well played, Sochi

Remember that Olympics ring mishap during the opening ceremony? So do the Russians. But they seem to have a sense of humor about it. During the closing festivities, 700 performers formed small circles that blossomed into the rings. The fifth circle purposefully refused to transform into the fifth ring for a few seconds, then drew a large roar of approval when it finally acquiesced.

Ukrainian cross-country skier Marina Lisogor
GETTY IMAGES

Busted

It wouldn't be an Olympics without someone testing positive for performance-enhancing drugs. Making the list this time: an Austrian cross-country skier, a Latvian hockey player, a German biathlete, an Italian bobsledder and a Ukrainian cross-country skier. In comparison, the 2010 Olympics had one positive case.

1	What will you miss most about the Winter Olympics?	The people pretending they know the rules of curling.	I thought it was really cool how they worked in the "Walking Dead" zombie. Whaaaaat? That was Bob Costas?	That bewildering feeling of not being able to find the channel hockey is playing on. Oh wait, I won't.	Putin face.	All those excuses to drink maple syrup straight from the jar.
2	Olympics judging is to controversy as my alma mater is to running a dirty girls hoops program, apparently. #treated	... Charlie Sheen is to porn stars.	... Vladimir Putin is to eye infections. One always seems to involve the other.	... Chicago weather is to complaining. It's always somethin'.	... Canada is to hockey gold medals. Can't have one without the other.
3	What was Vladimir Putin thinking when the Olympics ended?	He wasn't thinking; he was plotting. "cue ominous "James Bond" music"	"I need to send the men's Olympic hockey coach on a veeeeerrrry loooooong vacation."	"Next time he's in my country, we give Matt Lauer a full body rash."	"Next up? Super Bowl in Russia."	"I'm glad it was stray dogs and not geese. Those birds are TOUGH."
4	Console LeBron James as he recovers from his broken nose.	Aww, Wubron, wits ok that you hurt your wittle nowsey-wosey!	A large swollen nose is nothing big. I was born with one.	When you star with him in "Space Jam 2," Wile E. Coyote will likely get an anvil dropped on him, so quit whining.	Suck it up, bro.	We have a saying in my country for such situations: "Put some (bleeping) ice on it."
5	How will Shea McClellin help the Bears at linebacker?	Serious response: I think he'll actually be a good fit, especially on the outside and in pass rush!	HAHAHAHAHAHA! Cut it out! I just spit out my food laughing. Please stop!	By shutting up all the callers to sports radio who kept insisting he should play there. Be careful what you ask for, nimrods.	By reminding everyone how great Briggs is?	By just running around and being tall. That's an asset, right?

HISTORIC DAY FOR THE NBA

The Brooklyn Nets signed veteran center Jason Collins to a 10-day contract Sunday, making him the first openly gay active player in North America's four major sports.

Collins, 35, came off the bench Sunday night during Brooklyn's game against the L.A. Lakers.

"The decision to sign Jason was a basketball decision," general manager Billy King said in a statement. "We needed to increase our depth inside, and with his experience and size, we felt he was the right choice for a 10-day contract."

"Jason told us that his goal was to earn another contract with an NBA team," NBA Commissioner Adam Silver said. "Today, I want to commend him on achieving his goal. I know everyone in the NBA family is excited for him and proud that our league fosters an inclusive and respectful environment."

Collins has not played in an NBA game since April 17, 2013, when he was playing for the Washington Wizards.

Collins made a historic announcement about his sexual orientation to Sports Illustrated in April 2013, in a story that ran in the magazine's May 6 issue.

"I wish I wasn't the kid in the classroom raising his hand and saying, 'I'm different,'" Collins wrote. "If I had my way, someone else would have already done this. Nobody has, which is why I'm raising my hand."

THE DIGIT 15 YDS

The NFL competition committee has been discussing a possible new rule that would penalize players and teams for the on-field use of racial slurs. The rule would penalize a team 15 yards when a player is heard using the N-word and eject a player for a second such offense.

MIAMI 93, BULLS 79

The only thing worse than the Bulls having a five-game winning streak snapped? Having it snapped by Miami. Even without LeBron James (broken nose), the host Heat beat the Jimmy Butler-less Bulls (29-26) on Sunday. Joakim Noah had 20 points, 15 rebounds and four blocks.

Rachel Brosnahan
in 'House of Cards'

From Highland Park to 'House of Cards'

Chicago Tribune

Rachel Brosnahan was only supposed to have five lines on Netflix's "House of Cards."

As Rachel Posner, a call girl, Brosnahan's role was slated for a two-episode arc in the critically acclaimed series starring Kevin Spacey as ruthless politician Francis Underwood.

But then showrunner Beau Willimon thought up a series-changing idea that allowed for Brosnahan to play a crucial role in another character's downfall.

"She had done such a fine job those first two episodes that I started exploring what it would mean to bring her character back and fully three dimensionalize her," Willimon said. "Rachel was so fantastic when we brought her back that I just wanted to write for her more and more."

For Highland Park's Brosnahan, 23, every episode she returned for was a surprise, a "dream come true."

"I had no idea where the story was going, and so every episode that came up, something new and exciting was happening," she said. "It was just food. I was hungry for it."

Brosnahan has had an appetite for story since she can remember, and her resume displays a feast of rich roles. She booked her first professional gig, a small part in the Michael Bay-produced horror movie "The Unborn," while she was still at Highland Park High School. She was cast in a main stage production at Steppenwolf as a freshman at New York University, a role that landed her on Tribune critic Chris Jones' 2009 list of up-and-comers to watch. And within the past year, Brosnahan appeared in "Beautiful Creatures," which starred Emma Thompson and Jeremy Irons, filmed guest-starring roles in NBC's "The Blacklist" and ABC's soon-to-be-released "Black Box" and made her Broadway debut alongside Bobby Cannavale in "The Big Knife."

Brosnahan's Posner is tough, cunning, untrusting and emotionally worn. The first season revealed that Posner dropped out of high school as a sophomore and strongly implied that her father abused her. Since finding herself tied up in Underwood's plans, she's been pushed around by his chief of staff Doug Stamper, played by Michael Kelly. Season 2 sees Posner push back against Stamper and attempt to create a life of her own.

"I think she is incredibly calculated because she has to be," Brosnahan said of her character. "She is not in a position of power, and I think something that the show explores is that all of these characters are fighting for power. They are fighting for agency in their lives and having varying degrees of success. I think she is incredibly powerful, and I think she is underrated. ... She is that quiet kind of smart."

Add 'One More Thing' to B.J. Novak's resume

Chicago Tribune

After eight years as writer and co-executive producer of NBC's "The Office," B.J. Novak—who also played Ryan Howard alongside Steve Carell and John Krasinski—is flexing his creative muscles. In addition to acting in movies, including the recent "Saving Mr. Banks" and the upcoming "The Amazing Spider-Man 2," Novak recently published "One More Thing: Stories and Other Stories," a collection of short fiction, monologues and other snippets from his work as a standup comic.

Actor, director, producer, TV writer, and now author of books—you're quite the Renaissance man.

Actually, writing has always been the main thing for me, the thing that everything else has progressed from, including acting in "The Office." Writing has always been my home base, and I'm always looking for different forums to do it in.

You wrote several episodes of "The Office," and I read somewhere that you wrote most of these pieces while you were doing the show.

I had a lot of ideas working on the show. ... And after that was over, I looked at all the ideas that had never gotten a chance to breathe and thought of all the other ideas that would probably come if I'd let them. And so I thought, why not write a book?

The writing you did for the show and the writing in the book are not completely different things, are they?

It comes from the same place tonally, and it has the same values. What I learned on "The Office" was to care about every character immensely, even someone who might seem arrogant or a buffoon.

One piece in the book, "The Comedy Central Roast of Nelson Mandela," felt a bit risky. To what extent did you feel like you were on thin ice there?

I hope that people won't mistake it for something offensive. If they do, that's their right, and I'll understand. But for me, that piece was about sending up and exploring the culture of roasts. So I wanted to explore the idea: What would be going too far for a roast?

Stars of 'Divergent' to attend Chicago premiere

Chicago Tribune

Get ready to welcome the stars of "Divergent" back to Chicago.

Shailene Woodley, Theo James and Ansel Elgort are scheduled to attend the Chicago red carpet premiere of "Divergent" on March 4 at Showplace Icon movie theater. Northwestern alum Veronica Roth, who wrote the book the film is based on, also will be on hand.

The red carpet is scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. and the screening will take place at 8 p.m. For tickets to the screening, email divergentchi@gmail.com.

"Divergent" — which hits theaters March 21 — was filmed in Chicago from April to July. Filming took place at Navy Pier, the field at 600 S. Wells Street in the South Loop and Cinespace Chicago Film Studios on the West Side, among other places.

According to the Los Angeles Times, the film's sequel, "Insurgent," will film in Chicago and Atlanta. "Insurgent" is expected to arrive in theaters March 20, 2015.

ROMANCE PLANET

BY JENNIFER SHEPHERD | READ MORE AT LIPSTICKMYSTIC.COM

Pisces Feb. 19-March 20

With a new moon in your sign, it's time to focus on making your dreams come true. You'll have more positive energy coming your way than you have in a long time. Don't let anybody or anything hold you back.

Aries March 21-April 19

Mars has you questioning your relationship programming. If everybody in your family has conditioned you to believe you need a husband and 2.5 kids to be happy, you're finally saying, "Is that really true?"

Taurus April 20-May 20

Snuggly Venus is helping you enjoy the best parts of your relationship. You're having fun spending time with your honey and basking in each other's positive energy. If you're single, you're enjoying being with friends and coworkers.

Gemini May 21-June 21

Take a break. Relationships are crazy right now, and Mercury isn't making things any easier. Avoid making big decisions. Take time to clear your head and be by yourself.

Cancer June 22-July 22

With the moon opposite your sign, you won't have crystal-clear vision about how to handle your love life. So don't make any sudden moves. Instead, focus on healing yourself and letting go of past problems or negative situations.

Leo July 23-Aug. 22

You could have a moment of illumination this week, thanks to the moon. Maybe you'll see something on a talk show that helps you see negative patterns in your own life. Or perhaps a chat with a friend will reveal something important.

Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22

With a new moon opposite your sign, take it easy. You're likely to have low energy or just be suffering from a case of the blues. Ask your honey to treat you to a homemade dinner and a nice massage. You need to be nurtured.

Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23

Pay attention to advice this week. A friend might want to introduce you to somebody cute. A family member could be trying to set you up. The moon says check it out.

Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 21

The sun is increasing your confidence and helping you see that you really do deserve to be happy. You'll find it easier to walk away from romantic situations that are draining or ill-advised. And you'll be more inclined to choose partners who are friendly and kind.

Sagittarius Nov. 22-Dec. 21

You could hear from someone you used to date as Mercury kicks up energy surrounding a former flame. If you've moved on, maybe it's best to ignore this person. If you're single, you could find it helpful to reconnect.

Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19

You'll feel closer to your honey than you have in a while, thanks to the moon. Maybe you and your partner have been busy with conflicting work schedules and you haven't seen much of each other lately. You'll find it easier to get together.

Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Mars is telling you to stand up for yourself. If your honey is doing something that makes you feel bad, start talking about it. If your boss isn't valuing your time and effort, speak up. You'll get good results if you remain confident.

CHICAGO DYNASTY?

Success of police and fire shows is reminiscent of 'Law & Order' franchise

ABOUT LAST NIGHT

Luis Gomez

✉ lgomez@tribune.com
✉ @TribLuis

spinoff to "Fire" and "PD," both will have spawned multiple shows.

The cast members of "Fire" and "PD," however, are reluctant to make the comparison. They're still the news kids on the block and understandably don't want to jump the gun.

"I don't know, I'm not going to compare ourselves to another show," "Fire" star Taylor Kinney said Wednesday while walking the red carpet at "An Evening With Dick Wolf," which brought together both the "Fire" and "PD" casts at the Museum of Broadcast Communications. "Law & Order" is a cornerstone show. It's a different, more procedural show. But having Dick Wolf at the forefront of our show as our leader, I hope to come close to the success that the 'Law & Order' franchise had."

The original "Law & Order" premiered in 1990 and lasted 20 seasons before coming to an end in 2010. During that time, it produced four spinoffs, one of which still is on the air: "Law & Order: Special Victims Unit." "SVU," now in its 15th season, and "PD" teamed up for a crossover storyline this season involving a serial killer and rapist who began his spree in New York before heading to Chicago.

"PD" ratings have remained steady, with a second season appearing all but certain. The cop drama matched or bested its previous week's ratings in the key 18-49 demographic four episodes in a row before going on break for the Olympics.

"I certainly would never try to stake that kind of claim," "PD" actress Sophia Bush said Wednesday on the red carpet about the "Law & Order" comparison. "If other people feel that way, that's a great compliment for us."

Taylor Kinney

"Chicago PD" was introduced as a backdoor pilot toward the end of "Chicago Fire's" first season. Wolf said during Wednesday's panel discussion there will be another crossover near the end of this season involving a storyline reminiscent of the Boston Marathon and Oklahoma City bombings. According to an ad on Marinella Chicago Casting's Facebook page, which announces opportunities for extras on "PD," the episode is set to film in early March and feature "Big numbers, stunts, explosives, the whole 9 yards."

"I think it's such a rare occurrence in TV to do something like this—especially because our shows are so intertwined," Bush said of being involved in a franchise. "But I think when you're examining public service, it makes a lot of sense."

THIS WEEK

B.J. Novak will read and sign his book, "One More Thing," on Monday at Up Comedy Club.

ALSO SPOTTED ...

» Lady Gaga and boyfriend Taylor Kinney had dinner on Valentine's Day at Cafe Spiaggia.

» Chris O'Dowd and Leighton Meester watched The Second City Touring Company show Feb. 17 at The Second City while in town rehearsing with James Franco for Broadway's "Of Mice and Men." O'Dowd had dinner Wednesday at Jake Melnick's Corner Tap for the second time in a week.

» "Shameless" co-stars William H. Macy and Emmy Rossum dined separately Feb. 10 and together Feb. 11 at David Burke's Primehouse in The James Hotel.

» Jenni "JWoww" Farley met with L.A. Tan employees Feb. 17 at the West Loop Gate location and had lunch afterward at Quartino.

» Bow Wow hung out Feb. 15 at Paris Club's upstairs club, Studio Paris.

» Nigel Barker and NBA Hall of Famer Isiah Thomas dined separately Wednesday at Sepia.

» The Bears' Brandon Marshall dined Friday at Harry Caray's Italian Steakhouse in River North. Teammate Robbie Gould dined Saturday at Harry Caray's Italian Steakhouse in Rosemont.

Well, that didn't take long: Christina Aguilera and fiance Matt Rutler are expanding their new family. Just a week after the two announced they are engaged comes word they are expecting their first child together, people.com reports. Aguilera has a son from her first marriage.

Save the cheerleader ... again?

Look who's mastered the power of resurrection! NBC announced this weekend —via a vague, ominous teaser—that a 13-episode miniseries called "Heroes: Reborn" will debut in 2015. A network official "won't rule out the possibility of some of the show's original cast members popping back in," eonline.com reports. Come on, Sylar!

'12 Years' wins big

Talk about building momentum into next weekend's Oscars: "12 Years a Slave" won top movie honors Saturday at the NAACP Image Awards in Pasadena, Calif., the Los Angeles Times reports. Lupita Nyong'o won for best supporting actress, Steve McQueen won for best director, and John Ridley won for the screenplay.

HOT DATE

FEB. 28

That's when "Anchorman 2: The Legend Continues" director Adam McKay plans to release an alternate version of the movie, with about 95 percent of the jokes replaced with new dialogue, for a limited run in theaters. "Anchorman 2.5," so to speak, is possible because of McKay's filming style, in which he does multiple takes of each scene.
